French Bakers CelebrateCommemorated Four Hundredth Birthday Of The Doughnut

This generation has an evident fondness for anything French like them, and such causes for developing them. Therefore, no person can object when French bakers decide to commemorate the 400th birthday of the doughnut.

The first example of the famous confection was made in Paris in 1609. Some time later, a party came over the Channel into England, and from there made its way with householders and other ideas to this continent.

The first doughnut, we read in the Caribbean Citizen, Monroe, was shaped like a crown. That is, of course, interesting, but is of comparatively little importance. The rest is history, and we leave the care of the genius who first took a hoe and molded the doughnut round the vacant space.

One To Unveiled Mystery

McMillan Explores Finds Trace Of Froebisher Party, Lost In 1876

A clue to an ancient mystery of nearly forty years standing—the fate of five men left on Kadiamann Island by Sir Martin Frobisher in 1576—is reported by Donald B. MacMillan, who has just completed a two month exploration voyage to Baffin Land.

On his return from Greenland, the famous explorer discovered an ancient stone house which the Eskimos said was the work of white men. Inside were found bones of a bear and other evidence that it had been used as a shelter. The age of the mosaics and other particulars were not known, but were contemporary with Frobisher.

Kadiamann was also visited and here the party had made a shelter by Frobisher in Queen Elizabeth's day. Digging in the earth floor, they discovered some pottery which was identified as being of the period; also traces of the shipways down which the intrepid explorers had sailed. They found the remains of their ships were crushed in ice.

It was huberto that the five men left behind by Frobisher on the island had been unable to erect a fort to protect the supposed gold mines and had been killed by Eskimos. Careful examination of the bones showed that but a small big boat and were not slain, but had a big boat and were still on their perilous return to England.

The relics now found by MacMillan add further to the legend of the lost party. After a while their frail craft was crushed by icebergs, and many escaped ashore and built the one shelter in Countries.

Premier Ferguson Says No Plebiscite On The Liquor Control Act

Toronto.—Launching the first campaign of his political career, Premier John Howard Ferguson announced before a popular gathering here that there would be no plebiscite under his administration on the Ontario liquor control act.

"There will be no plebiscite because the Conservative party is in power," said Ferguson, who declared, "I'd happen to be the head of the government. We are quite prepared always to submit our record to the people. We have been criticized and discussed, and we must be prepared to accept our responsibility."

He went on: "The government does say the legislation is perfect. Time and experience are going to demonstrate its wisdom."

The Minister of Justice was admitted to be probably the best in the Dominion. It was administered by a very capable man."

"Let us amend and improve any defects in the act as we go along, so that any evils which may exist may be eliminated," Premier Ferguson declared.

"I am opposed to the liquor control act," he said. "The premier stated: 'They are contrary to the principle of responsible government. A plebiscite is a refuge behind which a government can hide from responsibility.'

Premier Ferguson had earlier referred to the W.E.N.S. Liberal League lead on the liquor question.

"I see," said the Ontario premier, "that Sir Sinclair is a bit worried in his effort to limit the scope of prohibition. I am not quite sure where he is or where he will land in that respect."

The position he has taken is that the people have approved of the legislation, but Mr. Sinclair does not want the Canadian Government to administer it. He now says the Ferguson Government should administer it and let those administer it who did not believe in it."

France Is Suspicious

Critics Of Anglo-American Agreement Lament Limitations

Paris.—French political opinion continued suspicious of the motives acting on the United States and Great Britain in their agreement on naval limitation.

Several Frenchmen maintained that while France and other powers appreciate the Anglo-Saxon entente, they were glad that peace had been secured.

The British proposal to empower the naval munitions conference to make naval and marine armaments figures governing disarmament was generally protested here. The press pointed out that the entente concluded the naval limitations and, that it is the business of the League of Nations disarmament committee to minimize tactical decisions and the naval schedules.

If this proposal of the committee was adopted, the semi-official French delegation to the League would be condemned.

French experts, however, preferred to consider the problem of naval disarmament apart from strategic questions, including aerial disarmament. Unless all considered together, naval limitation would remain in their view.

Income Tax Collections

In August alone, according to the National Revenue Department's figures, collections totalled $8,042,421, an increase against $622,100 in August of last year.

Aaron Sapiro In Favor Of Marketing Control

Edmonton Sask.—I am for cooperative marketing without reservation and without limitation, but I should like to control of the market, that is, the farmers, the farmers who raise it, and I am for the absolute elimination of even part of the control, but I am for the maximum interest in breaking down your great pools. I am for cooperation as a means in end, that, I think, is the best method in ending the absolute control of anything in whatever technical method, I think is the best method of control."

Before 700 farmers of the district tributary to the town of Estevan, Saskatchewan, Mr. Sapiro, the manager of the co-operative farm marketing unit of the United Farmers of Canada, opened the first gun in the campaign to end the absolute control of a segment of one hundred percent pool legislation.

The Prince of Wales looked in for a short time before leaving, gave expression to these sentiments and the manager of the Saskatchewan branch of the United Farmers of Canada, Mr. George King, told him that the King had a long interview with the King this afternoon while Miss Isabel was talking with Queen Mary.

THOMAS PLEASED WITH HIS RECENT VISIT TO CANADA

Liverpool, Eng.—"I am completely satisfied with the results of my visit," declared Right Hon. J. H. Thomas, Air Minister and Minister of Health, who had just returned from a visit to Canada. "I hope and I feel that it will contribute towards a solution of the unemployment problem in this country."

"I promise to meet representatives of all business interests which can do business with Canada so that the necessary steps can be taken to give effect to my efforts. Canada will take coal and steel from Great Britain and we are at present discussing from other areas."

"I have not asked Canada to do anything which involves herself," he added, "but I did ask something on account of Britain being the largest buyer, when from the Canadian Mr. Holtwood was present. That was given to the Emperor, prior to his sailing for Canada on the 'Empress of France.'

"I am as much as I can be satisfied with the highest organizations of the old country, I say once again, as I would like to offer some help to the housewives of Canada."

However, as I say, I shall meet the highest organizations of the old country, I say once again, as I would like to offer some help to the housewives of Canada."
